Aditi Mahavidyalaya has taken several steps to prevent ragging within the college premises as well as outside the college. The Anti-Ragging Committee, which consists of teachers and students, is led by a nodal officer. Aditi Mahavidyalaya has both an offline and online procedure for students and parents to file anti-raging affidavits. It is mandatory for all students to submit affidavits stating they will not engage in harassment activities. The committee educates senior and first-year students on the legal perspectives on anti-ragging redressal mechanisms. During the orientation program, all freshers are given detailed information about ragging as well as strict penalties for those who will be caught engaging in ragging activities. First-year students are also provided with the phone numbers and e-mail addresses of Anti-Ragging Committee members so that they could report any ragging activity in the college without any delay. Every year, several teams of teachers are formed to inspect the college premises during college hours to check for ragging activities. Students who engage in ragging will be punished, rusticated, and even expelled for a specific term based on the Principal's decision and University guidelines. Several notice boards are placed in prominent locations throughout the college stating the punishment for ragging in accordance with Ordinance XV-C. There have been no ragging incidents have been reported by our students in college. Every year, the college submits an anti-ragging report to the university.
